TRIBUTE PAID TO WAR DEAD BY THIS CITY

Memorial Day Speaker Says
Republic's Principles Are Proven In Conflicts.

Republican principles were tested and established in the cauldrons of three wars, the soldiers of which are honored on Memorial Day, according to Senator Paul M. Herbert, of Columbus, who delivered the main Memorial Day address here Thursday at Memorial hall.

"Back of the Civil war was a half century of discussion about the question of state's rights," Senator Herbert said. "The war was fought to settle for all time the question whether a state could leave the Union if it wanted to do so. It was the patriotism of the Civil war veterans that preserved the unity of the nation."

"The Spanish-American war, the last one ever to be fought by purely volunteer service, was fought to settle forever in the mind of the world that there could be no foreign oppression upon any nation on this side of the waters. The World war was fought to settle the question of the right of any people to govern themselves unmolested."

NEED TRAINED FORCE

Discussing preparation for war, Senator Herbert declared that the United States does not need of desires great armies and navies, but she does need an adequate force well trained ready to cope with any emergency that might arise. He said too many soldiers are sacrificed before they are properly trained when war comes.

No person, Senator Herbert asserted in conclusion, has any right to accept the blessings which heroic soldiers have brought to the nation unless he is willing, if the case demanded, to make the same sacrifice to preserve those blessings.

The services at Memorial hall began with the invocation by Rev. B. C. Peters, after which the assembly sang "America." Ned Griner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Griner, recited Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address."

Music was provided by the U. B. church quartet and the Capital university band, the latter playing in the parade to the cemetery. The band, its members clad in purple uniforms, made a bright spot in the parade which marched to Forest cemetery immediately after the downtown service.

FIVE FROM CIVIL WAR

Five Civil war veterans attended the services at Forest cemetery. They were James Graham, William H. Hudson, Thomas A. Bates, George Trimmer and James Trimble.

At Forest cemetery, Daughters of Union Veterans conducted services at the Soldiers' Monument and the G. A. R. ritual was conducted at the soldiers' plot. The American Legion services were conducted in St. Joseph's cemetery at the grave of Charles Rooney, a World war veteran. Early in the morning the G. A. R. service was conducted at the High-st cemetery.

Joseph Lynch and Robert Young, who were in charge of the Memorial Day arrangements, expressed their gratitude Friday for the co-operation of the organizations and to the residents of the city for the flowers which were used to decorate the graves of Circleville's hero dead.

STRAIGHT FUNERAL IS HELD ON FRIDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Effie Straight who died Tuesday evening at five o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. Della Ashworth, in Kingston were held Friday at the Ashworth home. Rev. Floyd S. Webb conducted the services. Interment was in the Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Chevrolet Sedan Demolished
In Collision With Lincoln
East of City.

Five persons were injured, one seriously, and three of them had a miraculous escape from death in an automobile collision which demolished the Chevrolet sedan of Israel Bausman, of Marion, O., at the intersection of the county line road and Lancaster-Circleville highway Thursday afternoon.

The Chevrolet of Bausman and a Lincoln sedan belonging to W. H. Hill, colored, Cincinnati, collided when Bausman drove out of the county line road from Stoutsville. The smaller car was hurled from the road and through a fence.

Bausman suffered cuts about his face and hands and the arteries in his left wrist were severed. His wife and six-year-old daughter were also cut and bruised as were two occupants of the Lincoln sedan, Hill and Lucy Rinehouse. The third occupant of the Cincinnati car was uninjured.

Dr. E. S. Shane was summoned and gave first aid to the injured after which Mr. and Mrs. Bausman and daughter were taken in the M. S. Rinehart ambulance to the home of relatives in Stoutsville.

The Lincoln sedan sustained a crushed radiator, broken front axle and shattered window glass and was taken to the Clifton Auto Sales garage for repairs. The Chevrolet was so badly wrecked that it was abandoned.

A number of other automobile accidents occurred near Circleville Wednesday evening and Thursday, among them the crash Wednesday evening between a Chevrolet from Columbus and a Buick from Michigan at Bell's Siding. The Chevrolet lost three wheels in the crash and a girl riding in it had her front teeth knocked loose.

The driver adjusted the repair bills between themselves and their names were not learned.

Woman Is Charged With Operating Murder Farm To Collect Insurance

Landlady, 71 Years Old, and Alleged Hired Assassin
Under Arrest.

MACON, Ga., May 31.—The authorities moved swiftly today to amass an impregnable pile of evidence against Mrs. J. C. Powers, 71-year-old landlady, charged with operating a "murder farm," and Earl Manchester, 21, an alleged hired assassin.

Within a few days the charges will be turned over to the Bibb-county grand jury. Solicitor General Charles Garrett has summoned a special grand jury Tuesday to arraign the pair, specifically charged with the murder of James W. Parks, an orphan printer. Menwhile police were gathering up the loose ends to an amazing chain of revelations in an attempt to support their theory that the landlady, luring young men to her home by a kindly smile, and her promise of motherly care, planned a "murder farm," with doom inevitable for her boarders.

BARELY MISS TRAPS

Following closely her confession and consequent repudiation that she hired Manchester to slay Parks, on whose life she had a $7,000 double indemnity policy, and whose body was found early in the week in the Ocmulgee river here, the police declared their investigation showed other youths barely missed similar traps.

T. S. Martin told investigators he answered an advertisement for a chauffeur identical with that which young Parks answered a month before. While talking to

Mrs. Powers, Martin said, she mentioned life insurance, and told him that if he wished to join her "family" he would have to take out some life insurance in her favor. Martin said he "went away, and never came back."

INSURED HOUSES BURN

Although they were occupied chiefly in delving deeper into the Parks murder, the authorities were also looking into the circumstances of the disappearance a few years ago of Claude P. Burham on whose life Mrs. Powers was said to have obtained a $5,000 insurance policy.

Another angle was added to the Burham disappearance when it was learned that F. E. Valentine, of Macon, the agent who sold the Burham policy, was slain under mysterious circumstances some time ago.

According to police, two dwellings here insured in favor of Mrs. Powers, were burned four years ago, and their origin never was satisfactorily explained.

RACING FATE UP TO COURT

Men Charged With Gambling
At Dog Track Are Before
Madison-Co Jury.

LONDON, O., May 31.—A jury today to decide whether the "contribution" system of betting is legal at dog races in Ohio.

This will be the direct result of the jury trial of two officials and two employees of the West Jefferson Kennel club who are charged with permitting gambling and operating gambling devices at the dog races, sponsored by them, at West Jefferson.

Those who went on trial in probate court here today are: H. M. Foster, manager of the track; O. P. Van Scheick, secretary; Ned Speasmaker, cashier and Les Kinnaid, ticket seller, the latter two employees of the track.

The trial is what is called a "test case." The "contribution" system of betting, it is explained, consists of making a "donation" to the track, and then if the "donation" was placed for the winning dog, a refund is made. This, at one time, was declared legal in Ohio.

It was reported that the men, if convicted by the jury, will carry the case to the higher courts.

Foster declares he has invested $66,000 in the West Jefferson track. The people there, he claims do not oppose the races, but are strongly in favor of them, inasmuch as the tax that goes to the city greatly reimburses a somewhat depleted treasury there.

MOSQUITOES HERE

No prize was offered to the citizens of Circleville who turned in the first mosquito bites. These pesky perennial pests have arrived by the thousands, and already it is almost impossible to sit on porches that are not screened. The unusually damp weather, followed by the extremely hot days, were ideal for the breeding of the mosquitoes.

Little relief from sweltering temperatures was promised in the weather forecast for today. Though, the official prediction said "cooler" it was explained by W. H. Alexander, Columbus weather-observer that the mercury would drop only about five degrees.

Three persons were killed at Cleveland as the result on an auto crash and two train accidents. Lester Shipman, 20, was killed in the auto crash, and Ray Billington 40, and William Marziewicz, 14, were the train victims.

ENGLISH KING IS AGAIN ILL

George V. Suffers Serious Relapse At Conclusion of Bitter Election.

LONDON, May 31.—Agog with excitement over one of the bitterest elections in recent British history, the populace of England was shocked today to learn that its sovereign, King George V., had suffered serious relapse and was in danger of losing the ground so painstakingly gained following his critical illness from pleurisy and emphysema.

The king, it was learned, was stricken following a garden party near Windsor castle, where he and the queen have been staying since the return from Bognor, on the Sussex coast.

His majesty is confined to his bed, suffering from cold complicated by fever, and some new infection, is believed to be present.

Lord Dawson of Penn, the king's surgeon whose skill snatched the monarch from the jaws of death a few months ago, has arrived at Windsor, following a hasty return by airplane from Paris.

It was learned this morning that the king had passed a fairly comfortable night, obtaining some sleep, and that his general condition was unchanged.

An officially inspired statement in the London "Times" this morning declares that thus far the physicians have been unable to determine the nature of the new infection from which the king is suffering. There is no reason to suppose, the statement continues, that his majesty's health has been in any way impaired by the pressure of public affairs or by the duties which would fall upon him next week by the change in government.

YOUTH TELLS OF BEING TORTURED

SPRINGFIELD, O., May 31.—Suffering from severe bruises inflicted, he says by a band of men who attacked him while he was walking along a gravel pit, near here, Richard McCullom, 18, was confined to his home here today. The 18-year-old youth was found bound and gagged on the front porch of his home last night. His clothes, excepting his underclothes, had been stripped from his body. He was badly bruised. He told police that "they tried to burn me but they had only one match."

Police found his clothing scattered about in the stone diggings. Miss Margie Hunsicker has accepted a position in Dunn-Taft Department store, Columbus, during the summer vacation.

Great Britain Is Without King And Parliament Today

LONDON, May 31.—Great Britain today is without a king or a parliament.

The renewed illness of King George V. is essentially unfortunate at the present moment, since the country is without a parliament, whose approval would be necessary in the event a regent had to be appointed to administer the affairs of state.

If the conservatives are defeated in the election, which now appears almost a certainty, the situation will be exceedingly involved even in its present circumstances. It is not known officially whether the present council of state is empowered to receive the resignation of the incumbent cabinet and appoint a new prime minister, a function invariably undertaken by the monarch whenever a new election takes place.

24 ARE DEAD IN EMBLOR

Scores Injured When Earthquake Razes South American Villages.

BUENOS AIRES, May 31.—Twenty-four persons are known to be dead and scores of others injured as the result of an earthquake which partially destroyed several towns and villages in the province of Mendoza.

An official checkup of the dead gives the figure of twenty-four, but reports filtering in from the stricken area indicate the death toll may mount to fifty.

The quake, which came in a series of tremors, the longest of which lasted four minutes, was felt all over the country, telegraph and railway connections were destroyed, and relief trains immediately dispatched to the stricken area have been held up by twisted tracks and great holes torn beneath the roadbed.

Doctors, nurses and troops are hastening into Mendoza by automobiles, but even this progress is slow, owing to debris and felled trees blocking the roads. Damage is estimated at many millions of pesos.

Latest reports indicate that the towns of Villatuell and Monte Coman have been virtually wiped out, while Villa Alvear has also suffered heavy damage.

REVIVAL ARRANGED

A two weeks' revival meeting will be started Sunday, June 2, at the United Brotherhood church on S. Scoot-st by W. H. Shaeffer, evangelist. He will be assisted by Mrs. Shaeffer, choir director, and Miss Marguerite Shaeffer, pianist. The public is welcome to the services which will start each evening at 7:30 o'clock.

MACDONALD'S PARTY GAINS BIG VICTORY

Former Premier Gives Victory
As Tide of Success In Election Mounts.

LONDON, May 31.—The labor party was still gaining in the tabulation of general election returns at 5 o'clock this afternoon. At that time the result stood: Labor, 258 seats in the new house of commons; conservatives, 155; liberals, 45; others, 55. Only 57 constituencies were reported at that hour.

(Copyright, 1929, I. N. S.)

LONDON, May 31.—While turns from the British general election poured in from all parts of the British Isles today, making a landslide to labor was predicted in history. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the labor party and probably the next prime minister of England, outlined in the national news service the principles upon which a government formed by him would stand.

Briefly, these would be: To abide by war debt payments already made, with particular reference to the agreement for the funding of the British debt to the United States, made on the Balfour note;

Furtherance of world disarmament, in accordance with the recent pronouncement made at Geneva by United States ambassador to Belgium, Hugh Clarendon; Opposition to the restoration of the British army of occupation in Germany.

Mr. MacDonald outlined his view in written statements, and by International News Service.

ELECTORAL TRIUMPH
The victorious leader of the labor party in the British general election grew in popularity from all parts of the country. The first time in history the party returned more members to the house of commons.

Tabulation of the returns at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon showed the laborites 222 seats in the parliament. The conservatives had 198; liberals, 31; and others, five.

Premier Stanley Baldwin, conservative; former liberal, Ramsay MacDonald, and former Conservative David Lloyd George, all re-elected to the house of commons. As there are 615 seats to be filled, 308 seats were necessary for an absolute majority.

ADMIT LABOR VICTORY
Headquarters of the conservative party practically deserted defeat early in the afternoon. It was a virtual landslide. Conservative evening newspapers characterized the election as "national."

There will be a large number of women in the new house of commons. Returns to non-unionists showed 11 women elected or re-elected, including Miss Margaret Lloyd George, daughter of the former premier.

Malcolm MacDonald, son of former premier Ramsay MacDonald, was elected in the Birmingham division of Nottingham by a majority of 8,011.

Ramsay MacDonald, who was elected in the Seaham division of Durham, had a record majority over W. A. Fearnsley-Whittingstall, conservative. The former premier polled 35,616 votes against his opponent's 4,821.

Chancellor of the exchequer Winston Churchill, conservative, was re-elected in the Epping division of Essex by a majority of 4,967, over G. G. Sharp, liberal.

2 BROTHERS DROWN ON MEMORIAL DAY

CINCINNATI, O., May 31.—A Memorial Day camping trip today resulted in the drowning of two youths of one family who resided at Reading near here.

Julius Goldsmith, 20, and his smaller brother Clarence, 15, were drowned yesterday morning in the Whitewater river, near Brookville, Ind., where they, with a party of friends, had gone on a camping trip.

The brothers, according to a telephonic report made to the parents, are believed to have been caught in an under-current as the wars wading in the stream.

State Fights to Imprison Boy

Back in the shelter of his mother's arms is Carl Mahan, 6-year-old Paintsville, Ky., boy who was sentenced to a reformatory for fifteen years for killing a playmate. The boy, shown here with his mother, Mrs. John Mahan, was freed on bonds when another judge issued a writ prohibiting execution of the sentence. Now the state is appealing the decision setting the boy at liberty.

ENGLISH KING IS AGAIN ILL

George V Suffers Serious Re-lapse At Conclusion of Bitter Election.

LONDON, May 31.—Agog with excitement over one of the bitterest elections in recent British history, the populace of England was shocked today to learn that its sovereign, King George V., had suffered serious relapse and was in danger of losing the ground so painstakingly gained following his critical illness from pleurisy and empyema.

The king, it was learned, was stricken following a garden party near Windsor castle, where he and the queen have been staying since the return from Bognor, on the Sussex coast.

His majesty is confined to his bed, suffering from cold complicated by fever, and some new infection, not apparent in the malady from which he had all but recovered, is believed to be present.

Lord Dawson of Penn, the king's surgeon whose skill snatched the monarch from the jaws of death a few months ago, has arrived at Windsor, following a hasty return by airplane from Paris.

It was learned this morning that the king had passed a fairly comfortable night, obtaining some sleep, and that his general condition was unchanged.

An officially inspired statement in the London "Times" this morning declares that thus far the physicians have been unable to determine the nature of the new infection from which the king is suffering. There is no reason to suppose, the statement continues, that his majesty's health has been in any way impaired by the pressure of public affairs or by the duties which would fall upon him next week by the change in government.

YOUTH TELLS OF BEING TORTURED

SPRINGFIELD, O., May 31.—Suffering from severe bruises inflicted, he says, by a band of men who attacked him while he was walking along a gravel pit, near here, Richard McCullom, 18, was confined to his home here today.

The 18-year-old youth was found bound and gagged on the front porch of his home last night. His clothes, excepting his underclothes, had been stripped from his body. He was badly bruised.

He told police that "they tried to burn me but they had only one match."

Police found his clothing scattered about in the stone dings. Miss Margie Hunsicker has accepted a position in Dunn-Taft Department store, Columbus, during the summer vacation.

MACDONALD'S PARTY GAINS BIG VICTORY

Former Premier Gives Views
As Tide of Success In
Election Mounts.

LONDON, May 31.—The labor party was still gaining in the tabulation of general election returns at 5 o'clock this afternoon. At that time the result stood: Labor, 274 seats in the new house of commons; conservatives, 234; liberals, 45; others, five. Only 57 constituencies were unreported at that hour.

(Copyright, 1929, I. N. S.)

LONDON, May 31.—While returns from the British general election poured in from all parts of the British Isles today, indicating a landslide to labor unprecedented in history, Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the labor party and probably the next prime minister of England, outlined to International News Service the principles upon which a government formed by him would stand.

Briefly, these would be: To abide by war debt settlements already made, with particular reference to the agreement for the funding of the British war debt to the United States, based on the Balfour note;

Furtherance of world disarmament, in accordance with the recent pronouncement made at Geneva by United States ambassador to Belgium, Hugh Gibson; Opposition to the retention of the British army of occupation in Germany.

Mr. MacDonald outlined his view in written answers to a series of written questions put to him by International News Service.

ELECT MORE THAN 200
The victorious sweep of the labor party in the British general election grew in proportions this afternoon as returns poured in from all parts of the country. For the first time in history the labor party returned more than 200 members to the house of commons.

Tabulation of the returns up to 3:30 o'clock this afternoon gave the laborites 222 seats in the new parliament. The conservatives had 198; liberals, 31; and others, five.

Premier Stanley Baldwin, conservative; former liberal Premier David Lloyd George, and former Premier Ramsay MacDonald were all re-elected to the house of commons.

As there are 615 seats to be filled, 308 seats were necessary for an absolute majority.

ADMIT LABOR VICTORY
Headquarters of the conservative party practically conceded defeat early in the afternoon. It was a virtual landslide. Conservative evening newspapers characterized the election as "sensational."

There will be a large number of women in the new house of commons. Returns to mid-afternoon showed 11 women elected or re-elected, including Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of the former premier.

Malcolm, MacDonald, son of former premier Ramsay MacDonald, was elected in the Bassetlaw division of Nottingham by a majority of 8,011.

Ramsay MacDonald, who was elected in the Seaham division of Durham, had a record majority over W. A. Fearnley-Whitting-stall, conservative. The former premier polled 35,615 votes against his opponent's 6,821.

Chancellor of the exchequer Winston Churchill, conservative, was re-elected in the Epping division of Essex by a majority of 4,967, over G. G. Sharp, liberal.

2 BROTHERS DROWN ON MEMORIAL DAY

CINCINNATI, O., May 31.—A Memorial Day camping trip today resulted in the drowning of two youths of one family who reside at Reading, near here.

Julius Goldsmith, 20, and his smaller brother, Clarence, 15, were drowned yesterday morning in the Whitewater river, near Brookville, Ind., where they, with a party of friends, had gone on a camping trip.

The brothers, according to a telephonic report made to the parents, are believed to have been caught in an under-current as they were wading in the stream.

Great Britain Is Without King And Parliament Today

LONDON, May 31.—Great Britain today is without a king or a parliament.

The renewed illness of King George is essentially unfortunate at the present moment, since the country is without a parliament, whose approval would be necessary in the event a regent had to be appointed to administer the affairs of state.

If the conservatives are defeated in the election, which now appears almost a certainty, the situation will be exceedingly involved even in its present circumstances. It is not known officially whether the present council of state is empowered to receive the resignation of the incumbent cabinet and appoint a new prime minister, a function invariably undertaken by the monarch whenever a new election takes place.

24 ARE DEAD INTEMBLOR

Scores Injured When Earthquake Razes South American Villages.

BUENOS AIRES, May 31.—Twenty-four persons are known to be dead and scores of others injured as the result of an earthquake which partially destroyed several towns and villages in the province of Mendoza.

An official checkup of the dead gives the figure of twenty-four, but reports filtering in from the stricken area indicate the death toll may mount to fifty.

The quake, which came in a series of tremors, the longest of which lasted four minutes, was felt all over the country, telegraph and railway connections were destroyed, and relief trains immediately dispatched to the stricken area have been held up by twisted trackage and great holes torn beneath the roadbed.

Doctors, nurses and troops are hastening into Mendoza by automobiles, but even this progress is slow, owing to debris and felled trees blocking the roads.

Damage is estimated at many millions of pesos. Latest reports indicate that the towns of Villatuel and Monte Coman have been virtually wiped out, while Villa Alvear has also suffered heavy damage.

KONJOLA ENDS 22 YEARS OF PAINS AND ILLS

"Five Dollars Spent For New Medicine Brought Me Thousands of Dollars Worth of Health."

MRS. S. A. ATCHISON.
"No wonder Konjola is called the master medicine," said Mrs. S. A. Atchison, 633 Watervliet avenue, Dayton.
"For twenty-two years I suffered from indigestion and kidney trouble, and was unable to get any relief. I became worse, and as the years passed I came to the belief that there was no help for me. Gas and bloating followed every meal, and at times I feared my heart would cease to beat. Pains pierced my back constantly, and my kidneys got me up time after time at night."
"A number of friends urged me to try Konjola, and five dollars spent for this new medicine brought me thousands of dollars worth of health. I began to improve at once, and at the end of five weeks my health problems had been solved. I can eat anything I like; my sleep is sound and refreshing. The back pains are gone and my digestion has been restored. Wonderful, indeed, is Konjola."
Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, by Hamilton & Ryan's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

America's Shoe Bill Cut In Half By a Simple Idea

Get Fun Out of Your Job,
Frank Melville, Jr.,
Tells U. S. Boys

FRANK MELVILLE, JR.

NEW YORK.—In the cutting room of a New England shoe factory Frank Melville, Jr., got an idea that is saving Americans millions of dollars annually.

He saw shuff after shuff crowded with rolls of leather—scraps. There was imitation alligator and real; kangaroo and calf and vici kid. These were leftovers, he was told.

Mentally observing that profits can be left behind in the factory just as surely as fights can be left behind in training camp, Mr. Melville looked further. He saw workers idle, either waiting on materials or pausing for a comrade to finish an operation. One machine was halted for repairs; another was being changed over.

Somebody Paid for Waste

It was borne home to him that SOMEBODY must be paying for this state of affairs; and he realized that if a cure could be effected it would revolutionize the entire shoe industry.

"Supposing," said he, turning to the manufacturer, "that I gave you an order for all the shoes of one style you could make for one week—just one shoe, just one style. The same heel, the same edge trimming and pattern; the same fitting, last and stock—what would it mean to you in savings?"

His friend was too startled to answer immediately, but his face lit up at the picture.

"And," persisted Mr. Melville, "supposing that on the following week I gave you a similar order; and on the week after that another one?"

"It would mean a tremendous saving," said the factory man, finally.

"How would you like to start making shoes along this line for me?" was the next question fired his way.

"Great!" was the reply.

"All right, then," said Mr. Melville, "I'll bring you the orders, you make the shoes."

And as he departed that evening for New York to prepare his stores for handling a vast increase in business, there echoed in his ears the strident clatter of machinery being assembled to proceed full speed ahead on the new plan. From the start it functioned perfectly, Mr. Melville being forced to open store after store to keep pace with production. Today there are eight great factories making shoes for the Thom McAn Corporation, of which he is the president and directing genius.

His Recipe for Success

A salesman himself, it is only natural, perhaps, that Mr. Melville should credit the striking success of his company to its superior selling methods, and his guiding principle may be summed up in these words—

"Successful salesmanship consists in being terrifically in earnest and getting a maximum of fun out of your job. The business man should 'hit the line' with the abandon of a star halfback in an important game; he should tackle his workday problems with the single-minded intensity of a Babe Ruth or a Ty Cobb.

"Then, if he doesn't worry constantly about 'how much am I going to make out of this,' and contrives to be happy and enterprising in his work, that chap is going to awaken some day to the fact that he is earning a lot of money."

SENATOR BROOKHART

INESTIMABLE benefits would redound to the American people through adoption by Congress of his bill to honeycomb the country with a far-flung network of hard surfaced roads, says Senator Brookhart, of Iowa.

Under Brookhart's plan the road building program, contemplating construction of 25,000 miles of Federal highways, would be self supporting through the levying of a license or toll charge upon automobile users. The government would issue $2,000,000,000 in treasury legal tender greenback notes.

"These could be redeemed in 30 years by a license of $5 annually upon each automobile," said Brookhart. "After the program has been completed, a license of $1 a year would be sufficient to pay the upkeep of the roads."

"The construction work could begin at once and should be completed within two or three years," he said.

The chief benefits from such a system of national highways would be four-fold:

1. Increase the circulating medium of the country and break down high interest rates.
2. Establish a competing system of freight traffic and prevent pyramiding of railroad freight rates.
3. Relieve the unemployment problem by providing work for 250,000 men in road building.
4. Stimulate the automobile industry and all legitimate business generally.

Seven national trunk highways runnings from coast to coast and from north to south, are contemplated, with an auxiliary feature which would provide feeder lines from all State capitals to the nearest trunk highway. Further authorization is asked to purchase extensive rights of way so that the roads could be widened at any time to meet increasing traffic needs. None of the trunk highways would run within ten miles of a city of 200,000 population or more.

"In time, I think the increased value of the land on the rights of way would more than pay the cost of the entire program," explained Brookhart.

"The roads would be constructed scientifically, better than any we now have, and would average about $80,000 a mile to build."

America's Shoe Bill Cut In Half By a Simple Idea

Get Fun Out of Your Job,
Frank Melville, Jr.,
Tells U. S. Boys

NEW YORK.—In the cutting room of a New England shoe factory Frank Melville, Jr., got an idea that is saving Americans millions of dollars annually.

He saw shelling after shell crowded with rolls of leather—scraps. There was imitation alligator and real kangaroo and calf and vici kid. These were leftovers, he was told.

Mentally observing that profits can be left behind in the factory just as surely as fights can be left behind in training camp, Mr. Melville looked further. He saw workers idle, either waiting on materials or pausing for a comrade to finish an operation. One machine was halted for repairs; another was being changed over.

Somebody Paid for Waste
It was borne home to him that SOMEBODY must be paying for this state of affairs; and he realized that if a cure could be effected it would revolutionize the entire shoe industry.

"Supposing," said he, turning to the manufacturer, "that I gave you an order for all the shoes of one style you could make for one week —just one shoe, just one style. The same heel, the same edge trimming and pattern; the same fitting, last and stock—what would it mean to you to save?"

His friend was too startled to answer immediately, but his face lighted up at the picture.

"And," persisted Mr. Melville,
"supposing that on the following week I gave you a similar order;
and on the week after that another one?"

"It would mean a tremendous saving," said the factory man, finally.

"How would you like to start making shoes along this line for me?" was the next question fired his way.

"Great!" was the reply.
"All right, then," said Mr. Melville, "I'll bring you the orders, you make the shoes, that chap is going to do it. And as he departed that evening for New York to prepare his stores for handling a vast increase in business, there echoed in his ears

the strident clatter of machinery being assembled to proceed full speed ahead on the new plan. From that start it functioned perfectly.
Mr. Melville being forced to open store after store to keep pace with production. Today there are eight great factories making shoes for the Thom McAn Corporation, of which he is the president and directing genius.

His Recipe for Success
A salesman himself, it is only natural, perhaps, that Mr. Melville should credit the striking success of his company to his superior selling methods, and his guiding principle may be summed up in these words—

"Successful salesmanship consists in being terrifically in earnest and getting a maximum of fun out of your job. The business man should hit the line with the abandon of a star halfback in an important game; he should tackle his workday problems with the single-minded intensity of a Babe Ruth or a Ty Cobb."

"Then, if he doesn't worry constantly about how much am I going to make out of this, and contrives to be happy and enterprising in his work, that chap is going to succeed some day to the fact that he is earning a lot of money."

Giant Network of Roads Aid to Country's Success

Iowa Senator Sponsors
Huge Interstate
System

INESTIMABLE benefits would redound to the American people through adoption by Congress of his bill to honeycomb the country with a far-flung network of hard surfaced roads, says Senator Brookhart, of Iowa.

Under Brookhart's plan the road building program, contemplating construction of 25,000 miles of Federal highways, would be self supporting through the levying of a license or toll charge upon automobile users. The government would issue $20,000,000,000 in treasury legal tender greenback notes.

"These could be redeemed in 30 years by a license of $5 annually upon each automobile," said Brookhart. "After the program has been completed, a license of $1 a year would be sufficient to pay the upkeep of the roads."

"The construction work could begin at once and should be completed within two or three years," he said.

The chief benefits from such a system of national highways would be four-fold:

1. Increase the circulating medium of the country and break down high interest rates.

2. Establish a competing system of freight traffic and prevent pyra-miding of railroad freight rates.

3. Relieve the unemployment problem by providing work for 250,000 men in road building.

4. Stimulate the automobile industry and all legitimate business generally.

runnings from coast to coast and templated, with an auxiliary feature which would provide feeder lines from all State capitals to the nearest trunk highway. Further authorization is asked to purchase extensive rights of way so that the roads could be widened at any time to meet increasing traffic needs.

None of the trunk highways would run within ten miles of a city of 200,000 population or more.

"In time, I think the increased value of the land on the rights of way would more than pay the cost of the entire program," explained Brookhart.

"The roads would be constructed scientifically, better than any we now have, and would average about $50,000 a mile to build."

KONJOLA ENDS
22 YEARS OF
PAINS AND ILLS

"Five Dollars Spent For New Medicine Brought Me Thousands of Dollars Worth of Health."

MRS. S. A. ATCHISON.
"No wonder Konjola is called the master medicine," said Mrs. S. A. Atchison, 633 Watervliet avenue, Dayton.

"For twenty-two years I suffered from indigestion and kidney trouble, and was unable to get any relief. I became worse, and as the years passed I came to the belief that there was no help for me. Gas and bloating followed every meal, and at times I feared my heart would cease to beat. Pains pierced my back constantly, and my kidneys got me up time after time at night.

"A number of friends urged me to try Konjola, and five dollars spent for this new medicine brought me thousands of dollars worth of health. I began to improve at once, and at the end of five weeks my health problems had been solved. I can eat anything I like; my sleep is sound and refreshing. The back pains are gone and my digestion has been restored. Wonderful, indeed, is Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, by Hamilton & Ryan's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Two years ago this month the General Electric Refrigerator was publicly announced for the first time.

Fifteen years of research and development had produced a refrigerator with an hermetically sealed, dust-proof mechanism, mounted on top... a refrigerator with an improved type of cabinet, mounted on legs... one with an accessible temperature control... that established a new standard of quiet operation... that required no oiling... that dispensed with all troublesome machinery...

that lowered operating costs... that carried an unqualified two-year service guarantee.

A radical improvement has been made in the cabinet! It is now all-steel! It cannot warp. It is as strong as a safe.

You can purchase the new models shown at our display rooms on conveniently spaced payments.

COMBINATION AGAIN WINNER

Cliftona Picture Made By
Same Stars and Directors
As "The Barker."

The same combination of director and featured players that was seen in the successful screen offering "The Barkers," appears in First National's "His Captive Woman," coming to the Cliftona theatre Friday.

George Fitzmaurice, who was at the megaphone on "The Barker," was the director of this picture, and Milton Sills and Dorothy Mackall were featured in both.

Miss Mackall has a powerful role as the defendant in a sensational murder case in the story, and Sills portrays the stolid, unflinching officer who trails her half way around the world "making his catch."

The beautiful islands of the Hawaiian group furnished the background for the story, the company spending more than a month making scenes there.

"His Captive Woman" is adapted from the Donn Byrne story, and is said to be one of the finest screen stories of the year.

A splendid supporting cast is seen, including George Fawcett, Frank Reicher, Marion Byron, Sidney Bracey and Gertrude Howard.

"HOT HEELS"

Glenn Tyrone and Patsy Ruth Miller are starred at the Grand theatre tonight in "Hot Heels," a thrilling melo drama of the Havana race tracks. The sixth chapter of "The Diamond Master," also will be shown.

Health Hint

Many persons complain of lack of appetite on arising. This is often due to sluggish digestion from the night before. Fruit for breakfast helps to overcome this condition. A little fresh air and exercise before eating are beneficial.

Has Forgotten Tragedy

Carl Mahan, above, aged 6, of Paintsville, Ky., who killed his playmate, Cecil Van Hoose, aged 8, following a quarrel, has not mentioned the shooting since a half hour after the deed, according to his father, John Mahan. The child was given a fifteen-year reformatory sentence, but was granted a writ of prohibition.

KINGSTON

Miss Georgia Jacobs and Mrs. Alice called upon Mrs. Norman Pyle at the unknown hospital Thursday morning. Mrs. Pyle is recovering nicely from her recent operation.

Dr. and Mrs. John Marcy and son Delos of Williamsport, Misses Grace and Madge and Mr. Richard Hinkle of West Blanchard, Mr. and Mrs. George Wright and son John, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinkle and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hinkle were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hinkle on Sunday. Misses Grace and Madge Hinkle remained for the night and all visited the Veterans' hospital at Camp Sherman on Monday.

A splendid likeness of Miss Ruth Lloyd of Portsmouth, O., was printed in the Sunday Dispatch. Miss Lloyd will graduate at Ohio State University law school in June. She has made connections which will take her to Cincinnati. O. Miss Lloyd is a niece of Mrs. John Jones and is well known in Kingston, having visited her aunt so often.

Mr. Ed. Newman of Chillicothe attended the senior class play on Tuesday evening.

HOYT'S QUICKLY ENDS STOMACH MIS- ERY FOR OHIO MAN

Well Known Columbus Man
Finds New Health After
15 Years of Suffering.

MR. ROBERT WILLIS.

"HOYT'S COMPOUND in my opinion is by far the greatest medicine ever introduced in Ohio," said Mr. Willis. "For years I had suffered with rheumatism and stomach trouble and a chronic case of constipation. This rheumatic affliction caused pains to shoot through my body which felt just like knife thrusts. I had tried all kinds of medicines and finally came to the conclusion that I would have to suffer it out for the rest of my life."

"But a great surprise was in store for me for no sooner had I started taking the Hoyt's Compound than I began to improve. My stomach is greatly improved, bowels are regular, kidneys are strengthened and the rheumatic pains are entirely gone from my body. I certainly have obtained wonderful results from this Hoyt's Compound and I feel that I owe it to other sufferers to make this statement for I have found that it is ENTIRELY DIFFERENT than OTHER MEDICINES and works quickly restoring the victim to new health in an almost unbelievable manner."

Hoyt's Compound is sold at all leading drug stores everywhere.—Adv.

This is a
hard-water country

Soap and hard water make scum. The hardness in the water combines with the soap. The scum collects dirt. There is a dirty ring around the dishpan, the washbub, the bathtub. But soften hard water with Melo and no scum forms.

Water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. It makes the soap much more effective, too, saving from 1/2 to 1/2 the amount ordinarily used. Melo only costs 10 cents a can. You can afford to buy 3 cans and keep one in the kitchen, one in the laundry, and one in the bathroom. Get it at your grocer's.

BIBLE THOUGHT

THE PROMISED MESSENGER

Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord: And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse.—Malachi 4:5,6.

PRAYER—"Dost Thou, Jesus condescend, to be called the sinner's Friend? Ours, then, it shall always be Thine to make our boast of Thee."

RULED BY EMOTIONS

After the dirigible Graf Zeppelin landed at Cures, France, when engine trouble interrupted its proposed voyage across the Atlantic, one who cared to observe things European could notice a strange phenomenon.

The French and the Germans were actually saying nice things about one another—for the first time in nobody knows how long!

Huge crowds of French men and women visited the hangar where the big airship was stored. French soldiers and mechanics worked beside the German crew getting the ship into shape. In Parisian newspapers there were words of praise for the aerial visitors; and in Berlin the newspapers expressed appreciation of the reception France had given Dr. Eckener and his men.

All in all, it was an unusual affair. It won't last of course. In a week or so the old suspicion and hostility will be uppermost again. But for a few days there was an era of good feeling; and, to an irritable and over-weary world, even a few days of it are something.

It goes to prove—as if any proof were needed—that we are, after all, ruled by our emotions.

Just as Lindbergh's dramatic flight suddenly ended the discord between France and the United States, and restored the old harmony of 1917, so the Graf Zeppelin's landing at Cures wiped out, for the moment, memories of war's wrongs and old-time hatreds and enabled two nations to meet amicably on a common ground.

The worst of it is, however, that it works the other way, too.

Just as some sudden and spectacular event can override old enmities and bring harmony overnight, so a less fortunate accident can create, equally swiftly, a wave of hatred and indignation.

Let your memory go back 31 years if you don't believe it.

If the battleship Maine had not blown up and sunk in Havana harbor in the early winter of 1898, it is quite possible that the American people would never have consented to the war with Spain. That one event set the nation on fire. It roused emotions that carried all before them.

A child is always ruled by his emotions. A grown man is at least supposed to be ruled by his intellect. In the mass, however, it appears that most of us are still children.

Today, for no reason except that a German airship landed in France the French and Germans are showering compliments on one another.

Tomorrow, for some equally insufficient reason, they will probably be talking about war.

This rule of emotions is dangerous. It has good results, some times; but it is too uncertain. You can't ever tell what it is going to do to you.

Getting Ahead

Improve yourself just as religiously as you feed yourself. Don't be afraid that by so doing you will benefit some one else. To increase the value of your services to yourself you must first increase your value to others.—Gift.

Duties of Citizenship

Every gift or ability is a talent to be accounted for, and to be improved to our Master's advantage. Yet it is also a debt to our country to have a willing and it concerns the commonwealth that none be idle, but all busied.—George Herbert.

EVEN A PRIVATE CITIZEN HAS FEELINGS

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

TO escape the nagging of a stepmother and the selfishness of her stepister, Daphne Haines, seventeen and beautiful, leaves home determined to make her own living. She has a difficult time in San Francisco and nearly starves until she encounters Ralph McKevitt, family friend, wealthy and handsome, whom her half-sister, Crystal, has decided to marry for luxury and comfort, rather than love. Ralph soon wins Daphne's affection, and she is exquisitely happy until Crystal appears. Crystal uses McKevitt as a "good thing," but spends much time with a debonaire Bohemian, Avery Woodward, who promises to teach her much of life and love and art. Unhappy because Ralph obviously neglects her now, Daphne moans and dreams until she reduces her efficiency to a point where she loses her position. Ill with humility and fright, she sits in the park. Suddenly she discovers Ralph driving along in a smart roadster. She hails him. He seems enthusiastic over their meeting, and she feels reassured that he still cares for her. She tells him her troubles and he promises to find her a position.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XX.
"D O people ever die of happiness?" Daphne wondered. Every morning she went to work all tingling with excitement, quivering with importance, and sat at her nice new typewriter and typed letters on the heavy gray stationery of Greely, Sanderson and McMurtree.

It was all so interesting and exciting. The library with law books stacked to the ceiling, and Barney, the office boy to climb up the ladder and get the books you wanted out of the top shelves. Old Mr. Greely crouched in his huge, dark paneled room with the fascinating old English hunting prints on the wall, having mysterious conferences with tall, pale Mr. Sanderson, who had a long, lean face like an undertaker, and with a ruddy, fat Mr. McMurtree.

The people who came to the office were interesting too. Old ladies with high-boned collars supporting their scrawny necks, and diamonds, bright as locomotive headlights, blazing from their eyes; their throats, their withered fingers.

Rich young widows in expensive mourning. A constantly changing stream of men in easy fitting, well pressed business suits, and just before the noon whistles blew there was Miss Yardley Mr. Sanderson's secretary with her good-natured, homely face in the door. "Have lunch with me, Miss Haines?" It was almost too perfect.

Daphne tried to tell Ralph how grateful she was, and how much he loved it, but he couldn't believe that any girl as young and pretty as she could really enjoy working, and listened to her with a puzzled, faintly cynical grin.

"What are you giving us?" "But I mean it, Ralph!" "I'll have to look into this. You've got a sweetie there already."

She laughed out loud. "Why, they're all married except Mr. Greely."

"Doesn't Greely drive you crazy? I couldn't work with the old goat if he paid me a million a minute. Suspicious, prying, interfering, 'creeping old devil'."

"He isn't! He doesn't talk that way about you, either. He says just wonderful things about you." Ralph looked at her quickly. "He talks about me to you?"

Daphne blushed. "Oh, not much; but whenever he speaks of you, it's so nicely. And he's just wonderful to me. He says—"

She stopped and laughed. "He says I've got brains."

Tire "Picked Up" Nugget

Charles C. Crite, a California farmer, was driving along a stretch of gravel road when one of his tires blew out. On removing the tire, Crite discovered the cause of the puncture to be a gold nugget. He sold the nugget to a jeweler and received enough to buy an inner tube.

Glorious Opportunities

We lay so much stress on the glorious political opportunities open to American youth. We ought to lay stress also on the fact that with which the highest and greatest are reabsorbed into the ranks of private citizenship when their days of service and elevation are over.—Providence Journal.

Church as Piggy

The ancient church of St. Mary Magdalen, Nipon, England, has been scheduled by the office of works as an ancient monument. For many years the edifice has been a ruin, and some years ago pigsties were erected at the west end, the front being used as a pig trough.

That's all. I couldn't go back now and face my stepfather. . . . have him count the pennies it cost him, and have him say, 'I told you so!'

Her visits were always disturbing and expensive. She left behind her a trail of "Quelques Fleurs," spilled powder, and flattened pockets.

"Is she holding me up?" he wondered sometimes. "Is she working me for a sucker?"

But of course she wasn't. "It's just that it's so darn expensive living in the hotel. Wait till I move into the apartment. You'll come often, honey?" she begged. And he promised, his lips close to her honey-colored hair.

"After all, I knew her long before I ever knew the kid," he told himself. "And she's not self-reliant like Daphne. She needs me, damn it. I can't turn her down."

"Ralph?" Daphne's voice came to him over the telephone wire, tremulous, and far away. It was the first time she had ever called him. "Ralph, Mr. Greely is going away for the week-end, over to his cottage at Bolinas, and . . . Ralph? Can you hear me all right?"

"Sure, what am I supposed to do, go in mourning 'cause he's left?"

"No, much better than that . . . Ralph . . . He came into my office today before he went away, and he said I was to telephone to you and tell you he'd like us to come for the day on Sunday, and his sister would be there—"

"Oh Lord!"

"What did you say, Ralph?"

"Nothing."

"Don't you want to go?"

"Sure, I was just meditating on Sister Anne. She's—oh well—wait till you see her. What time does this Roman holiday begin?"

"He said to come early—"

"Let's see; that's day after tomorrow. I think I can make it. I'll be around for you about eight or half-past seven. The old pun believes in the early bird. Call it half-past seven."

"I'll be ready . . . And then in a little squeak, 'Won't it be fun?'"

"Going with you will be fun, and the beach is nice. I could do without Greely and Sister Anne—well—I'll try to make it—"

"Oh, Ralph; can't you be sure? He wants us to let him know—"

She couldn't keep the disappointment out of her voice.

"All right. Tell him we'll be there," he said, laughing. "I'll be my darndest, and in case anything happens I'll send Allan with you, instead."

"Allan? But Mr. Greely said you and I—"

"Oh, he likes Allan. Allan Winters. I've told you about Allan, how we went to school together and he works for me? Good old Allan! He'd do anything for me. Greely thinks the world of him—"

"But Ralph I'd—I'd—"

"You'd rather have me?" He laughed. "All right then, I'll be there!"

Daphne left the telephone and walked sedately to her room. But once behind the closed door she did a little dance to celebrate, hugging one of the old sofa pillows tight for a partner, and whirling until she was drunk with dizziness.

Then she emptied her purse on the bed, to count her money.

Miss Anna Schleyer entertained the Side Track club last night at her home.

Happy Youngsters in Home of Longfellow

I have called it "the poetry school," because it was in the house of a poet, because we lived in an atmosphere of poetry and saw the birth of many of the beloved poet's best-known works. I took them very much for granted. If anyone had said to me, "Is not your grandfather a poet?" I should probably have replied, "Why, yes. Isn't yours?" The Longfellow children even made jokes about poetry, in which their father and their uncle, Rev. Samuel Longfellow, a writer of lovely verses and poems, allied and snatched them. A favorite breakfast dish of the family was buttered cakes baked in cups, which puffed out in the baking till they were mostly crust and little inside. These were generally known as "popovers," but the Longfellow children called them "poetry cakes," "because," they explained, with great gusto, "there's nothing in them!" and this joke their father relished hugely.—From "An Echo From Parnassus," by Henrietta Dana Skinner.

As It Seems to Him

It is my humble opinion that a greater part of the complaints uttered because of a seeming lack of kindly consideration in butankind are uttered by folks who are not seriously deserving of kindly consideration, but only believe themselves to be.—Portland Oregonian.

And That's That

Need of the times: More fire-sides and fewer roadsides.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Bird Statistics

The most abundant birds in the United States are the robin and the sparrow. The densest bird population on record in America is said to be on an island estate near Washington.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet what most physicians would tell you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

COMBINATION AGAIN WINNER

Cliftona Picture Made By
Same Stars and Directors
As "The Barker."

The same combination of director and featured players that was seen in the successful screen offering "The Barkers" appears in First National's "His Captive Woman," coming to the Cliftona theatre Friday.

George Fitzmaurice, who was at the megaphone on "The Barker," was the director of this picture, and Milton Sills and Dorothy Mackaill were featured in both.

Miss Mackaill has a powerful role as the defendant in a sensational murder case in the story, and Sills portrays the stolid, unflinching officer who trails her half way around the world "making his catch."

The beautiful islands of the Hawaiian group furnished the background for the story, the company spending more than a month making scenes there.

"His Captive Woman" is adapted from the Donn Byrne story, and is said to be one of the finest screen stories of the year.

A splendid supporting cast is seen, including George Fawcett, Frank Reicher, Marion Byron, Sidney Bracey and Gertrude Howard.

"HOT HEELS"

Glenn Tyrone and Patsy Ruth Miller are starred at the Grand theatre tonight in "Hot Heels," a thrilling melo drama of the Hawaiian race tracks. The sixth chapter of "The Diamond Master," also will be shown.

Health Hint

Many persons complain of lack of appetite on arising. This is often due to sluggish digestion from the night before. Fruit for breakfast helps to overcome this condition. A little fresh air and exercise before eating are beneficial.

Has Forgotten Tragedy

Carl Mahan, above, aged 6, of Paintsville, Ky., who killed his playmate, Cecil Van Hoose, aged 8, following a quarrel, has not mentioned the shooting since a half hour after the deed, according to his father, John Mahan. The child was given a fifteen-year reformatory sentence, but was granted a writ of prohibition.

Misses Grace and Madge Hickie remained for the night and all visited the Veterans' hospital at Camp Sherman on Monday.

A splendid likeness of Miss Ruth Lloyd of Portsmouth, O., was printed in the Sunday Dispatch. Miss Lloyd will graduate at Ohio State University law school in June. She has made connections which will take her to Cincinnati, O. Miss Lloyd is a niece of Mrs. John Jones and is well known in Kingston, having visited her aunt so often.

Mr. Ed. Newman of Chillicothe attended the senior class play on Tuesday evening.

HOYT'S QUICKLY ENDS STOMACH MIS- ERY FOR OHIO MAN

Well Known Columbus Man
Finds New Health After
15 Years of Suffering.

MR. ROBERT WILLIS.

"HOYT'S COMPOUND in my opinion is by far the greatest medicine ever introduced in Ohio," said Mr. Willis. "For years I had suffered with rheumatism and stomach trouble and a chronic case of constipation. This rheumatic affliction caused pains to shoot through my body which felt just like knife thrusts. I had tried all kinds of medicines and finally came to the conclusion that I would have to suffer it out for the rest of my life."

"But a great surprise was in store for me for no sooner had I started taking the Hoyt's Compound than I began to improve. My stomach is greatly improved, bowels are regular, kidneys are strengthened, and the rheumatic pains are entirely gone from my body. I certainly have obtained wonderful results from this Hoyt's Compound and I feel that I owe it to other sufferers to make this statement for I have found that it is ENTIRELY DIFFERENT than OTHER MEDICINES and works quickly, restoring the victim to new health in an almost unbelievable manner."

Hoyt's Compound is sold at Wilder's Drug Store, Circleville. Also sold by all leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

This is a
hard-water country

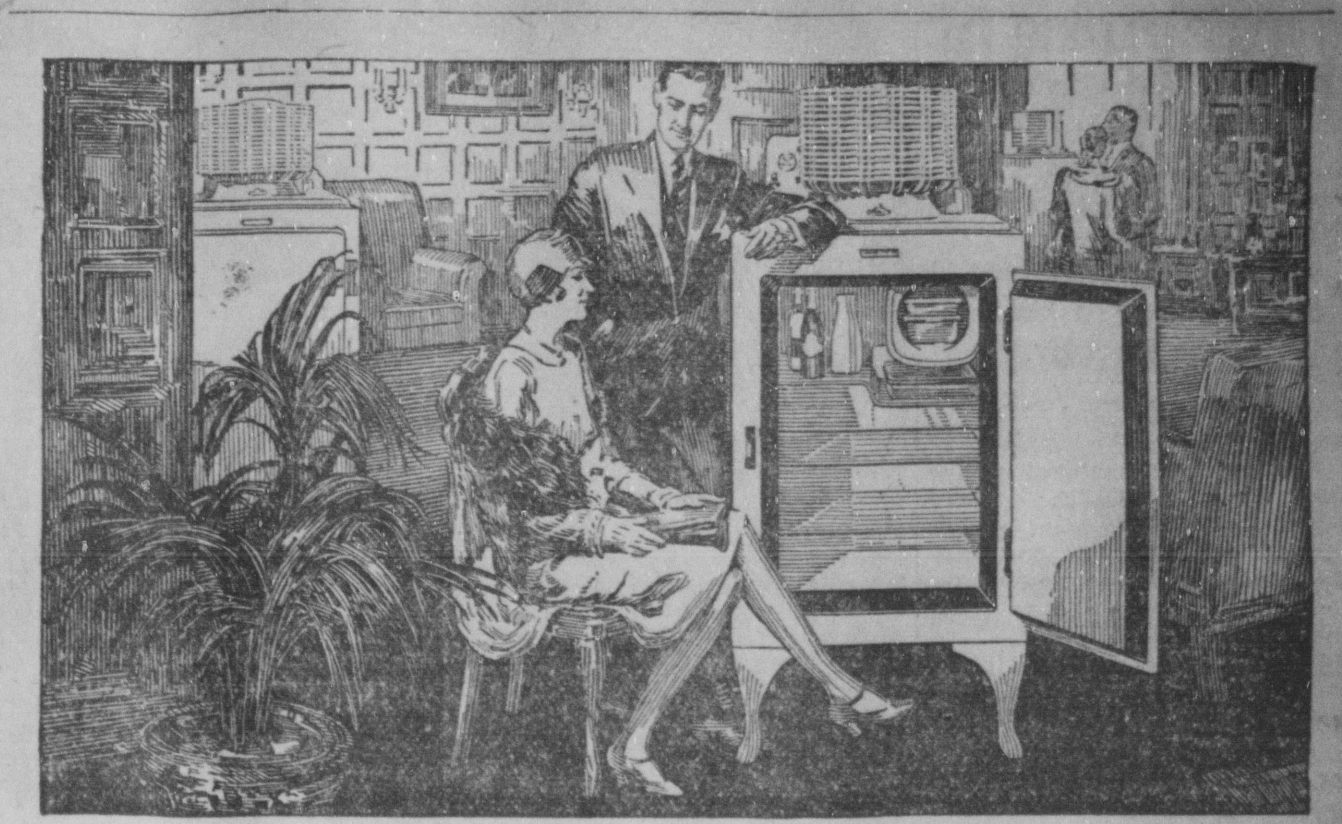

Soap and hard water make scum. The hardness in the water combines with the soap. The scum collects dirt. There is a dirty ring around the dishpan, the washbasin, the bathtub. But soften hard water with Melo and no scum forms.

Water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. It makes the soap much more effective, too, saving from 1/3 to 1/2 the amount ordinarily used. Melo only costs 10 cents a can. You can afford to buy 3 cans and keep one in the kitchen, one in the laundry, and one in the bathroom. Get it at your grocer's.

Two years ago this month the General Electric Refrigerator was publicly announced for the first time. Fifteen years of research and development had produced a refrigerator with an hermetically sealed, rust-proof mechanism, mounted on top... a refrigerator with an improved type of cabinet, mounted on legs... one with an accessible temperature control... that established a new standard of quiet operation... that required no oiling... that dispensed with all troublesome machinery...

A radical improvement has been made in the cabinet! It is now all-steel! It cannot warp. It is as strong as a safe.

You can purchase the new models shown at our display rooms on conveniently spaced payments.

COMPLICATIONS THE DANGER IN PLEURISY

Dr. Copeland, in Describing This Disagreeable and Painful Ailment, Stresses the Value of Care While Recovering from an Attack.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

A FEW days ago I talked with a rugged and apparently healthy young woman. She told me she had just recovered from an attack of pleurisy.

This is a disagreeable ailment. It attacks persons of all ages. In itself the disease is not particularly important. Unfortunately, however, there is a disagreeable relationship between pleurisy and tuberculosis.

Not for a moment would I have you think that every case of pleurisy is a symptom of tuberculosis. I do want you to know, however, that no chances must be taken in recovering from an attack.

Too many of us are inclined to sneer at disease. We take it too lightly. During the fever and the uncomfortable symptoms accompanying it, we form all sorts of resolutions. We determine that we are going to do everything necessary to avoid sickness in the future.

But just as soon as we begin to get better our good resolutions are forgotten. In our hurry to get back to business we do not give Nature half a chance to complete the recovery.

There are some attacks of pleurisy which, painful as they are, are not particularly serious. A perfectly healthy individual may suffer with symptoms of pleurisy after exposure to wet or cold.

There are the usual signs of trouble. Slight fever and pain in the side. When the doctor listens to the chest he finds friction on breathing. In a favorable case, there is no accumulation of fluid within the chest and the symptoms disappear within a few days.

In another type of pleurisy there is an accumulation of fluid. The word used to describe this is "effusion." The condition is known to the doctors as "pleurisy with effusion."

In every such case we are dealing with an ailment of considerable consequence. An unfriendly gain is present in the system. It is bound to be an uncomfortable neighbor. You need not think you are going to die if you are unfortunate enough to take on a passenger of this description, but certain precautions are absolutely necessary.

I wouldn't speak to you at all about this matter if I did not do it for a specific purpose. I want you to understand that pleurisy should not be neglected. If your doctor tells you you have this ailment and advises you to keep quiet, you should do exactly as he says.

The germs I have mentioned are germs capable of producing pain to create other unpleasant complications. They lead to a physical condition which may make you very ill and impair your usefulness for a long time.

You should lead such a life that your powers of resistance are always operating. They are working all the time to guard you against enemies if given half a chance.

Hard work and worry lower the vitality. The burden of having to earn a living and to support a family makes it difficult to escape abuse of the body.

If you have a beautiful, vase or some other fragile possession you do not spend all your time worrying for fear it may be broken. But you do take pains to keep the vase under conditions which will insure its safety.

Why don't you do this with your body? Certainly it is more important than any ordinary personal property. Guard it against harm and if by any chance you do get sick, deal honestly with Nature. Assist her in the process of getting well.

Answers to Health Queries
MISS W. Q.—My boy of six is very active, but highly nervous. He was rather delicate up to two years ago, but has since improved. He has bright red rings beneath his eyes which are very noticeable since he is rather pale otherwise. What would you suggest?

A.—The child may have intestinal worms.

J. H. C. Q.—What is the Fordyce disease?

A.—This is a condition marked by the presence of numerous yellowish white bodies or granules on the inner surfaces of the lips.

MISS D. D. Q.—What do you advise for developing the legs?

A.—I would suggest that you gain weight in general. Walking, skating and dancing are all good exercises for developing the legs.

FELICIZ R. Q.—What is "psies"?

A.—This is a symptom, not a disease. It indicates mucus in lungs or bronchial tubes.

MATINEES TO END

Beginning on Saturday, June 1, the Cliftona theater will have no matinees on Saturday afternoon, but will have three shows at night beginning at six, eight and ten o'clock. There will be matinees on Sunday, however, as usual starting at 2 o'clock, and running continuously.

Various Reasons for Extending Life's Span

Look here! Whereas, in 1870 people over sixty composed 50 per cent of the total population, they now compose 75 per cent. Dr. Ira S. Wiley, an expert in the intensive study of the figures of longevity, says so. People not only live longer, but they act younger, let us tell you. They have their teeth longer too; consequently, they can eat the kind of food that keeps them going. When one is reduced to spoon vittles, one can scarcely survive so many years; and, perhaps, some might testify that it isn't worth it.

After timing youth, there is something else left to contribute on earth for—the discoveries of science and the ever cheering promise that our political party will link the other one at the next election. The hope of victory keeps people alive—and the interesting news in the newspapers.

When people had nothing to read but Fox Book of Martyrs and their almanacs they grew tired; they growed half-baked before their enormous fireplaces, went to bed early and died of ennui. Without a best seller to read and no movie to go to, they quite naturally died up and withered away. They contracted a misery in their chests and didn't know enough to quit eating vinegar pie.

Now, 75 per cent of them live beyond sixty, and in a few years 15 per cent of them will.—St. Louis Globe Democrat

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

Why, Mr. Smith, my next door neighbor is out with another woman—I won't mention it to his wife because it might disturb the peace of their household.

Yes, it's a fine vacation for me! Any it? You send me way out here in the country for a change of scenery. You said, then you write that same old gang out here, and there they are, downstairs, making just as much noise and dirt as they did at home. I'd love to know where the change comes in? Now remember, they've got to leave first thing in the morning. I don't intend to cook for that bunch all day tomorrow again! Now you tell them! And if you don't, I will! And don't ask them out here again!

RAY KEECH IS VICTORIOUS IN AUTO CLASSIC

Young Driver Finishes First In 500 Mile Race At Indianapolis Thursday.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 31.—Ray Keach was the magic name that echoed over the automotive world today. He is the plucky young dare-devil whom Dame Fortune smiled upon yesterday with victory in the 500-mile Indianapolis speedway classic.

Keach, driving a Simplex piston ring special, ground out the distance in 5 hours, 7 minutes and 25 seconds at an average speed of 97.585 miles per hour.

Lou Meyer, piloting a Miller special, and winner of last year's race, finished second. Jimmy Gleason, in a Duesenberg special, came in third.

And thus, while fortune favored these and other drivers in the famous Hoosier Memorial Day classic, Billy Spence, a Los Angeles youth, was singled out as a human sacrifice to appease the gods of chance.

Spence was killed when his Duesenberg special overturned on "death curve" in the early minutes of the race. His lightning-bolt chariot was seen to hurtle into the air, turn completely over and come to a stop against the brick retaining wall on the south curve. His broken body was rushed to an emergency hospital where physicians pronounced him dead.

A crowd variously estimated from 140,000 to 170,000—the largest in the history of the event—witnessed the accident.

Cash prizes totaling $100,000 were distributed among the surviving racers. The first ten to finish received purses ranging from $20,000 down. Keach, the winner, was said to have received approximately $45,000. In addition to the grand prize, he won many lap prizes and was awarded several special sums put up by accessory manufacturers.

Pictorial Golf Instruction

By H. B. MARTIN

THIS IS THE IDEAL PUTTING STANCE

CORRECT AND MOST EFFECTIVE STYLE OF PUTTING

THE proper putting stance is of course the one which brings the best results no matter how awkward it may be. We all strive for perfection and naturally seek the easiest way of doing a thing.

Hagen, Jones, the late W. J. Travis, Jerome Travers, are examples of putting perfection. The easiest way to get the ball in the hole is to stand in a position in which no putt will be slighted. We should strive hard to make every putt, no matter how short. Long putts take care of themselves, as they are more or less of accident. Take command of the club with the right hand and make sure that the weight of the body is on the left foot. Stroke the ball. Do not jab at it. Keep the club going through in a straight line and your putting will be improved 50 per cent.

"Force" and "Energy"

There is a difference in physics between force and energy. A force is considered as anything that produces or tends to produce, destroy or change motion. Energy is the capacity for doing work and it may exist in the form of motion, heat, sound, light, electricity, etc. This capacity may exist even though no force is being exercised.

Cash Miller on Happiness

Most people chase happiness like it was somebody that tried to lift your watch, observed Cash Miller, cigar store philosopher. My unhappiness is it always comes to you unexpected like jerry duty or a fall in the ice. A lotta times it comes with false whiskers and a disguise which you don't recognize till it's too late.—Thrift Magazine.

Pictorial Golf Instruction

By H. B. MARTIN

CORRECT AND MOST EFFEC- TIVE STYLE OF PUTTING

THE proper putting stance is of course the one which brings the best results no matter how awkward it may be. We all strive for perfection and naturally seek the easiest way of doing a thing.

Hagen, Jones, the late W. J.
Travis, Jerome Travers, are examples of putting perfection. The easiest way to get the ball in the hole is to stand in a position in which no putt will be slighted. We should strive hard to make every putt, no matter how short. Long putts take care of themselves, as they are more or less of accident.

Take command of the club with the right hand and make sure that the weight of the body is on the left foot. Stroke the ball. Do not jab at it. Keep the club going through in a straight line and your putting will be improved 50 per cent.

"Form" and "Shape"

There is a difference in physics between form and shape. A body is considered as anything that produces or tends to produce, destroy or change motion. Energy is the capacity for doing work and it may exist in the form of motion, heat, sound, light, electricity, etc. This capacity may exist even though no force is being exercised.

COMPLICATIONS THE DANGER IN PLEURISY

Dr. Copeland, in Describing This Disagreeable and Painful Ailment, Stresses the Value of Care While Recovering from an Attack.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A FEW days ago I talked with a rugged and apparently healthy young woman. She told me she had just recovered from an attack of pleurisy.

This is a disagreeable ailment. It attacks persons of all ages. In itself the disease is not particularly important. Unfortunately, however, there is a disagreeable relationship between pleurisy and tuberculosis.

Not for a moment would I have you think that every case of pleurisy is a symptom of tuberculosis. I do want you to know, however, that no chances must be taken in recovering from an attack.

Too many of us are inclined to sneer at disease. We take it too lightly. During the fever and the uncomfortable symptoms accompanying it, we form all sorts of resolutions. We determine that we are going to do everything necessary to avoid sickness in the future.

But just as soon as we begin to get better our good resolutions are forgotten. In our hurry to get back to business we do not give Nature half a chance to complete the recovery.

There are some attacks of pleurisy which, painful as they are, are not particularly serious. A perfectly healthy individual may suffer with symptoms of pleurisy after exposure to wet or cold.

There are the usual signs of trouble. Slight fever and pain in the side. When the doctor listens to the chest he finds friction on palpating. In a favorable case, there is no accumulation of fluid. The word used to describe this is "effusion." The condition is known to the doctors as "pleurisy with effusion."

In every such case we are dealing with an ailment of considerable consequence. An unfriendly germ is present in the system. It is bound to be an uncomfortable neighbor. You need not think you are going to die if you are unfortunate enough to take on a passenger of this description, but certain precautions are absolutely necessary.

I wouldn't speak to you at all about this matter if I did not do it for a specific purpose. I want you to understand that pleurisy should not be neglected. If your doctor tells you to keep quiet, you should do exactly as he says.

The germs I have mentioned are germs capable of producing pus, or to create other unpleasant complications. They lead to a physical condition which may make you very ill and impair your usefulness for a long time.

You should lead such a life that your powers of resistance are always operating. They are working all the time to guard you against enemies if given half a chance.

Hard work and worry lower the vitality. The burden of having to earn a living and to support a family makes it difficult to escape abuse of the body.

If you have a beautiful vase or some other fragile possession you do not spend all your time worrying about it. You would break it. But you do take pains to keep the vase under conditions which will insure its safety.

Why don't you do this with your body? Certainly it is more important than any ordinary personal property. Guard it against harm, and if by any chance you do get sick, deal honestly with Nature. Assist her in the process of getting well.

Answers to Health Queries

A—Mrs. Q.—My boy of six is very active, but highly nervous. He was rather delicate up to two years ago, but has since improved. He has bright red rings beneath his eyes which are very noticeable since he is rather pale otherwise. What would you suggest?

A—The child may have intestinal worms.

J. H. C. Q.—What is the Fordyce disease?

A—This is a condition marked by the presence of numerous small yellowish white bodies or granules on the inner surfaces of the lips.

MISS D. D. Q.—What do you advise for developing the legs?

A—I would suggest that you gain weight in general. Walking, skating and dancing are all good exercises for developing the legs.

FELICIZ R. Q.—What is "rales"? A—This is a symptom, not a disease. It indicates mucus in lungs or bronchial tubes.

MATINEES TO END

Beginning on Saturday, June 1, the Cliftona theater will have no matinees on Saturday afternoon, but will have three shows at night beginning at six, eight and ten o'clock. There will be matinees on Sunday, however, as usual, starting at 2 o'clock, and running continuously.

Various Reasons for Extending Life's Span

Look here! Whereas, in 1870 people over sixty composed 5.0 per cent of the total population, they now compose 7.5 per cent. Dr. Ira S. Wile, an expert in the intensive study of the figures of longevity, says so. People not only live longer, but they act younger, let us tell you. They have their teeth longer, too; consequently, they can eat the kind of food that keeps them going. When one is reduced to spoon vittles, one can scarcely survive so many years; and, perhaps, some might testify that it isn't worth it.

After dining youth, there is something else left to continue on earth for the discoveries of science and the ever-cheering promise that our political party will lick the other one at the next election. The hope of victory keeps people alive—and the interesting news in the newspapers.

When people had nothing to read but Fox Book of Martyrs and their almanacs they grew tired; they throwed, half-baked before their enormous fireplaces, went to bed early and died of ennui. Without a best seller to read and no movie to go to, they quite naturally dried up and withered away. They contracted a misery in their chests and didn't know enough to quit eating vinegar pie.

Now 75 per cent of them live beyond sixty, and in a few years 15 per cent of them will.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Old American Cities

St. Augustine, Fla., is the oldest city in the United States founded by Europeans. The Spanish settled on this site in 1565 and it has been continuously occupied ever since. Santa Fe, N. M., is our second oldest city. It was founded by the Spanish about 1605 on the site of a deserted Indian pueblo.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Miss Allison Delaplaine, Editor, Phone 581.

Heat Forgotten as Juniors and Seniors Enjoy Annual Banquet Under Winter Sky

No social function in Circleville has ever had a more striking setting than the Juniors-Seniors banquet, which was held Wednesday night at the schoolhouse, and which was the climax to the society events in connection with graduation. The gymnasium at the high school had been transformed into a winter night, using the class colors, blue and silver in the canopy overhead as the winter sky.

Silvery snow was everywhere, and fell in a storm of flakes at one end of the hall where the orchestra and those appearing on the program looked through the flakes as they sang or played. A blurry-eyed snowman, life size stood at the corner of the fence piled high with snow. He had a blue hat, features, and buttons, and stood guard as the guests in their evening gowns and suits passed by, to find their places at the small tables.

Around the walls was a continuous winter scene, where blue and green houses, with steep gabled roofs covered with deep snow, appeared to be sitting at the back of the snowy landscape. Gaunt trees with leafless bows, glistened too, with snow, and here and there hanging heavy. Drifts almost covered the barnyard fences in one were evergreens with branches place in the continuity and a big bird winged its way to take shelter in the bows of a little pine tree.

All of this border made the winter setting more complete, and represented the work of the juniors, who had made everything under the planning and instruction of Mrs. A. J. Lyle, who was responsible for the entire decoration.

Lazy snowflakes also fluttered over each small table and over the large table where the board of education and their wives were seated. In the center of the table was a frozen pond. On the other tables were per snowmen about a foot high, and replicas of the larger snowmen which stood on the floor. The place cards were silver banners, suggestive of pennants floating on an Arctic ship. These were furled from the decorative nut cups which stood as favors at each plate. The following menu was served at the dinner:

Fruit Cocktail
Chicken Croquettes
Mushroom Sauce
Pea Patties
Buttered Potatoes
Spring Salad

Ice Cream
Hot Rolls
Cake
Coffee

Miss Virginia Reiche was chairman of the decoration committee, and with Mrs. Lyle in charge, was assisted by all of the members of the Junior class. Margie Hunsicker was chairman of the dinner committee and Jeanne Crowe was in charge of the program. Jinny Mader is president of the Junior class who so elaborately entertained the departing Seniors.

After the dinner, this program was followed with toasts, and responses, by the pupils and addresses by the superintendent, Mr. Gephart and members of the board with titles in harmony with the winter setting.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Heat Forgotten as Juniors and Seniors Enjoy Annual Banquet Under Winter Sky

No social function in Circleville has ever had a more striking setting than the Junior-Senior banquet, which was held Wednesday night at the schoolhouse, and which was the climax to the society events in connection with graduation. The gymnasium at the high school had been transformed into a winter night, using the class colors, blue and silver in the canopy overhead as the winter sky.

Silvery snow was everywhere, and fell in a storm of flakes at one end of the hall where the orchestra and those appearing on the program looked through the flakes as they sang or played. A blurry-eyed snowman, life size stood at the corner of the fence piled high with snow. He had a blue hat, features, and buttons, and stood guard as the guests in their evening gowns and suits passed by, to find their places at the small tables.

Around the walls was a continuous winter scene, where blue and green houses, with steep gabled roofs covered with deep snow, appeared to be sitting at the back of the snowy landscape. Gaunt trees with leafless bows, glistened too, with snow, and here and there hanging heavy. Drifts almost covered the barnyard fences in one were evergreens with branches place in the continuity and a big bird winged its way to take shelter in the bows of a little pine tree.

All of this border made the winter setting more complete, and represented the work of the juniors, who had made everything under the planning and instruction of Mrs. A. J. Lyle, who was responsible for the entire decoration.

Lazy snowflakes also fluttered over each small table and over the large table where the board of education and their wives were seated. In the center of the table was a frozen pond. On the other tables were per snowmen about a foot high, and replicas of the larger snowmen which stood on the floor. The place cards were silver banners, suggestive of pennants floating on an Arctic ship. These were followed with decorative nut cups which stood as favors at each plate. The following menu was served at the dinner:

Fruit Cocktail
Chicken Croquettes
Mushroom Sauce
Pea Patties
Buttered Potatoes
Spring Salad

Ice Cream
Hot Rolls
Cake
Coffee
Miss Virginia Reiche was chairman of the decoration committee, and with Mrs. Lyle in charge, was assisted by all of the members of the Junior class. Margie Hunsicker was chairman of the dinner committee and Jeanne Crowe was in charge of the program. Jinsy Mader is president of the Junior class who so elaborately entertained the departing Seniors.

After the dinner, this program was followed with toasts, and responses, by the pupils and addresses by the superintendent, Mr. Gehbart and members of the board with titles in harmony with the winter setting.
